No Time for Losers

With only two rounds left, the teams hoping to qualify could not afford any slip ups. That was definitely the case in the match between Skeidar and Salvo, the latter hoping for a big win to revive their fortunes.

Faced with a similar defence, Reese Milner won the second club and played back a third. He could then ruff a club high in dummy and only needed two heart tricks.

A number of declarers in 4♠ faced a diamond lead and they all discarded a heart on the third round of the suit. Rumen Trendafilov was the only defender to continue with two rounds of clubs to defeat the contract.

That left Salvo ahead 48-5, and they went on to record a vital win, 54-17 that moved them into fourth place.

With the Shield or on it

Going into the last round in the match between de Botton and Gillis the latter had to score a big win to have any chance of advancing. For them it was, as in ancient Sparta, a case of 'death or glory'.

One-Way Traffic

by Mark Horton

There is no formula for determining which match to watch. One may have a hunch about which may prove to be the most exciting, but even when one's choice is successful I tend to put it down to luck. On the fourth of February I determined to follow the efforts of Agriport and Schwartz at table 4.

East led the ◇K and West overtook it, cashed the queen and switched to the ♠10, declarer winning with the ace and playing a heart to the ten, queen and ace. West tried a third round of diamonds, but declarer could pitch a spade, ruff in dummy and draw trumps, +620 and 8 IMPs.

As you can see, in any event East would not have been able to survive in the ending because of his holdings in the black suits.

There were swings on each of the first five deals, but not of the type that sets the pulse racing. However, they all went in the same direction, giving Schwartz a 26-0 lead.
